FOR PLANNING PURPOSES July 23, 2013 Contact: Sean Neary/Meaghan Smith (202) 224-4515 Michelle Dimarob/Sarah Swinehart (202) 226-4774

MEDIA ADVISORY

BAUCUS AND CAMP ANNOUNCE PHILADELPHIA STOP ON TAX REFORM TOUR

Tax-Writing Chairmen Will Visit Small Businesses to Hear Concerns about America's Broken Tax
Code

Washington, DC - Today, Senate Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus (D-MT) and House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dave Camp (R-MI) announced that on Monday, July 29 they will visit two separate small businesses in the Philadelphia area. The Philadelphia trip is the second stop in a series of trips across the nation so the Chairmen of the two tax-writing committees can hear directly from Americans about how to spark a more prosperous economy and make today's broken tax code fairer for families and job creators. The focus of the Philadelphia trip will be how a simpler and fairer tax code can help small business and families boost the economy, create jobs and improve wages.

Who: U.S. Senate Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus (D-MT)

U.S. House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dave Camp (R-MI)

What: Tax Reform Tour in Philadelphia Metro Area

When and Where: Monday, July 29, 2013

10:30 am Visit to Mrs. G's TV & Appliances

2960 US Highway 1- Lawrenceville, NJ

About Mrs. G's: In business for more than 75 years, this third generation family-owned business serves appliance, sleep and TV needs across New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Today, the granddaughter of Abe and Beatrice Greenberg (Mrs. G) runs the business.

2:00 pm Visit to The Hub Centers for Meeting and Collaboration

2929 Arch Street - Mezzanine Level - Philadelphia, PA

About The HUB: Founded in 2004, The Hub provides fully-equipped meeting space as well as technology/business support services. With three locations in Philadelphia, The Hub serves business of all sizes – both those in the area and out of town business travelers.

On their tax reform tour, the two Chairmen will hear from a diverse group of voices including large multinational corporations with overseas operations, small, family-run businesses and individual taxpayers. During their first stop, Camp and Baucus traveled to St. Paul, Minnesota, where they visited both 3M and Baldinger Bakery.

"Over the past two years we've heard from hundreds of experts on how to fix the tax code to make it simpler for families and spark a more thriving economy, but now it's time to get beyond the 'Beltway' and hear directly from job creators, families and individuals," Chairman Baucus and Chairman Camp said in a joint statement. "The status quo, which is today's tax code, isn't working. It is too complex and every dollar spent and hour consumed figuring out how to comply is time and money they can't reinvest back into their business and their workers. We're hitting the road so that we can hear from job creators and families alike about how we can move past the status quo and make the system fairer and easier to deal with for all Americans."

More Information: To learn more about the work that Chairmen Baucus and Camp are doing to create a simpler and fairer tax code that boosts the economy, creates jobs and increases wages for families across America, visit http://taxreform.gov.

Media Planning: For those members of the media interested in attending, please contact Michelle.Dimarob@mail.house.gov and Meaghan Smith@finance.senate.gov in advance of July 29 to make arrangements to attend a specific stop.

###